

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I express my sincere gratitude to the Indian Institute of Public Administration (IIPA) for providing me an opportunity to work on this dissertation, which set me on an academic journey. The subject is relevant and topical. Indian police plays almost all roles and responsibilities that any police of any country do. It, probably, performs more roles, and that too in much more challenging environment. Challenges are both, in terms of volume as well as diverse nature of work. Yet it suffers from huge trust deficit. It has always intrigued me. Are the reasons within or do they lie outside? I don't have answers even now. But the dissertation has put me on a journey in that direction.

I am grateful to my guide, Prof. C. Sheela Reddy, who guided me with her constant supervision. Her vast experience, deep academic knowledge, and valuable insights steered my dissertation towards completion in time.

I also wish to thank my friend and colleague Dr. Sagar Preet Hooda, IPS and Mr. Satyajit Mohanty, IRS, who helped me in concretizing my thoughts on the topic. I am also thankful to Dr. Saurabh, Assistant Professor, Centre of South Asian Studies, School of International Studies, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi, who helped me in searching and extracting relevant literature.

I am extremely grateful to young and budding social scientist Dr. Kumar Saurabh, who helped me in collating the literature available. He never failed to encourage me when the sheer volume of information seemed too much to handle.

I am also grateful to Sh. Manoj Kumar Bhardwaj, my ex-office staff in Delhi Police, who helped me in his spare time in typing the material and formatting it in presentable form.

I must also acknowledge the support of S. Manish Rawat, Shri Rajesh Kumar and Shri Vinod Kumar Yadav, the office team at IIPA as well as the staff of IIPA library in greatly facilitating the course work, during my studies at the institute.

Finally, I could not have done this research and dissertation writing without the support of my wife Dr. Manisha Bansal and my kids Manya, Myra and Manan, who bore with my indulgence in the work.

Manish Kumar Agrawal

42nd APPPA (2016-17)

Place: New Delhi

Date: 16.03.2017