This thesis would not have been possible without the help, support and patience of Prof. Pranab Banerji, my guide. His advice and unsurpassed knowledge of the water sector economics has been invaluable for this thesis.

I would also like to acknowledge the financial, academic and technical support provided by the Indian Institute of Public Administration, New Delhi.

My heartfelt thanks goes to my fellow APPPA participants whose company and lively discussions have helped in enriching this thesis.

At last I would like to acknowledge the support I received from my beloved daughter in learning the computer techniques required for writing this thesis. She also took the pain of editing and suggesting appropriate incorporations to complement the text. I am also grateful to my father who blessed me with all the encouragement to work hard.
