For more than two decades in Government Service one has been trained in preparing succinct and precise notes, comments, observations, and similar writings. A sense of fulfillment thus engulfed me as I typed the final lines of the concluding Chapter after having keyed in a century of pages. A dissertation of this magnitude and on such an important topic has been possible only with the active contribution of a number of people.

First of all my thanks are due to Railway Administration especially Financial Commissioner (Railways) for my nomination to 37th APPPA. My guide Dr. P.K.Chaubey has been a kind and considerate source of constant inspiration and encouragement, instrumental in timely completion and structured presentation. The constant reminders and sustained happy learning environment by Programme Director Dr. K.K.Pandey and Programme Co-Director Dr. S. Chowdhry ensured that one remained focused on the task without being stressed. In the same breath my thanks to the APPPA office and library staff who provided all possible help as and when asked for.

I have stolen some precious moments from the time that belonged to my wife Vinita and sons Parth and Kartik, however, they on their part have been not only very considerate but also encouraging and this constantly inveigled me to do a good job.
